

Do I need a Binding Financial Agreement?

A Binding Financial Agreement (BFA) is a private agreement under the Family Law Act that sets out how the parties property/financial resources are to be divided should that relationship end.

A BFA can be entered into before a marriage or de factor relationship commences, during the relationship or after separation or divorce.

If you are considering a Binding Financial Agreement or have any other questions regarding Family Law, divorce & separation matters, please do not hesitate to contact Thomson Law on 07 5532 2238.

Visit our website www.thomson-law.com.au for more information on Binding Financial Agreements.